Pacific Southwest Airlines Lockheed L-188

One of three introduced in 1959. With the advent of the new decade, PSA's fleet consisted of three L-188 Electras and one DC-6. With PSA flying to four destinations – Los Angeles, Burbank, San Diego, and San Francisco – fares remained at 1958 levels and the airline finished 1960 just barely in the black with a profit of $499.
